eDOC Releases New Website

MIDWAY, UT and GRAND RAPIDS, MI – February 11th, 2009

eDOC Innovations (EDI), the nation's leading CUSO for e-document strategies announces that Fox Communities Credit Union has released its new customer website to enhance peer and owner accessibility to eDOC products and services.

"A lot of people talk about accessibility to information as key factor in the decision making process. We know it is a big consideration for our credit union owners and eDOC is committed to 'Walking the Walk', by having as much information and accessibility to us through our website as possible," comments Bret Weekes, President and CEO of eDOC Innovations. "Our peers and owners need to know what is happening in the ever changing e-document world and our goal is to keep them informed. We believe if our peers and owners have accessibility to our unique and expansive e-document resources, they can effectively become e-document innovators themselves and we think that is a winning combination for a credit union to be seen as Primary Financial Institution by its membership," Weekes continues.

According the eDoc Innovations, RSS feeds, market awareness documents and product details will help credit unions realize operational savings in lost time and opportunities, and help them to gain strategic value in their e-document strategies and allow them to effectively create new business opportunities with their own members.
